GAVE THEIR LIVES AS LAST TRIBUTE

Count and Countess Nogi Suicide in Accordance with Ancient Custom

WERE DEVOTED TO DEAD EMPEROR

Double Tragedy Enacted at Sound of Signal Gun that Mutsuhito's Body Had Started on Funeral Car—Plans Carefully Prepared and a Farewell Cup of Saki Drank by the Couple Before Taking Their Lives.

Tokio, Sept. 13.—General Count Maresuke Nogi, supreme military councillor of the empire, and his wife, the Countess Nogi, committed suicide tonight in accordance with the ancient Japanese custom as their final tribute to their departed emperor and friend, Mutsuhito.

The taking off by their own hands of the famous general, and his wife, was as dramatic as it was sad. The general cut his throat with a short sword, and the countess committed harikari.

Both Attended Funeral.

Following the Samurai custom, the couple had carefully prepared their plans for killing themselves and timed them so that they would be coincident with the departure forever from Tokio of the dead emperor.

General Nogi and the countess had attended the funeral services of Mutsuhito at the palace here today, and it was expected that they would proceed to Aoyama tomorrow to attend the funeral of the emperor.

Drank Farewell Cup of Saki.

First the general wrote a letter to his new emperor, Yoshihito, which he then found beside his body. Then he draped in mourning a portrait on the wall of the room, and after that, he and his wife dressed themselves in full Japanese costume and drank a farewell cup of saki from cups which had been presented to the general by Mutsuhito.

Darkness had fallen and General Nogi and the countess sat and awaited the signal that they were to die. The signal came at 10:30 p.m. when the emperor's body was being carried to the funeral car for its last resting place.

On Signal for Double Suicide.

As the boom of the signal gun resounded through the clear night, General Nogi arose and, wrapping tightly in his arms a short sword, plunged it into his throat. While the countess stabbed herself through the stomach. A student who resided in the Nogi home had the body of the general and the countess shown to him. The student went for aid, but when he returned with it both the general and the countess had passed away.

Tragedy Created a Profound Sensation.

The tragedy created a profound sensation, and expressions of sorrow were heard on every hand tonight. Especially among the aristocracy. Arthur of Connaught, the special envoy to the funeral of Mutsuhito of Great Britain, Prince Arthur was to have gone with General Nogi tomorrow to the former capital of the Mikado, Kamakura.

Nogi Hero of Russo-Japanese War.

Those who knew General Nogi well declared that his calmness in killing himself was a sign of his great courage. He was always calm and collected, no matter what crisis faced him. They instanced the famous charge of the Japanese up the 12,000 feet of the Russo-Japanese war when as commander of the Japanese third army Nogi saw the Russians mow down his forces in hundreds, and yet calmly and fearlessly continued the battle, finally taking the hill, and eventually being handed the surrender of Lieutenant General Saito at Port Arthur.

AN OLD CUSTOM.

Japanese Ambassador Says It is Now a Rare Occurrence.

Washington, Sept. 13.—Viscount Chinda, Japanese ambassador here, was inexpressibly shocked and grieved at the tragic deaths of General Nogi and his wife. The ambassador recalled the fact that in the days of feudal Japan when the lord of the domain died it was by no means an uncommon thing for his close dependents and friends to commit suicide in order that the spirit of the deceased should not make the last journey alone. In recent years, and in the new Japan, this custom had been generally abandoned, so that it is now a very rare occurrence. The fact that General Nogi and his wife had left their two sons during the Russo-Japanese war, leaving them practically without a family tie, had entered their affections and devotion upon the late Emperor Mutsuhito, and it was doubtless the case that upon his death the mind of the old warrior succumbed to the idea of suicide.

Judge Advocate General Enoch Crowder is one of the few American army officers who came closely in contact with General Nogi during the Russo-Japanese war. He was one of the American military attaches permitted to accompany the Japanese army at Port Arthur.

General Crowder was greatly surprised to learn of the self-destruction of the Japanese general. He regarded him as a man of more than usual self-poise and self-command. The old indomitable Samurai instinct, it was plain to be seen, said General Crowder, had a strong hold upon his personality and it was doubtless the ancient belief that brought General Nogi to self-destruction.

Although General Kuroki, Admiral Togo and others of a bright galaxy of Japanese military and naval talent of the war period have visited Washington in recent years as the guests of the nation, General Nogi never came here. In July, 1911, he was to have accompanied Admiral Togo to this country, but at the last moment he was obliged to decline the special invitation that had been extended to him, as Admiral Togo made the visit alone.

THE FINAL CEREMONIES.

Thousands of Bells Told at Supreme Stage of It.

Tokio, Sept. 13.—The body of Emperor Mutsuhito was conveyed from Tokio to Aoyama tonight in the first stage of the journey to its last resting place at Monzenyama.

It was a picturesque though solemn procession. Borne on a two-wheeled cart, drawn by oxen, the huge casket containing the body of the emperor was taken through lines of soldiers, back of which thronged countless thousands of natives and numerous foreigners, over three miles of road that were brilliantly lighted with torches and lanterns. The casket was carried by the black and white funeral poles and sacred trees stood out in bold relief from the background of mourning-draped and beflagged buildings.

Following the impressive funeral service of today in the palace, the single detonation of a gun tonight served as an announcement to the waiting thousands in Tokio that the cortege was leaving the palace for Aoyama. The firing of the gun, developed later, also was the signal which General Count Nogi, one of Japan's foremost soldiers, and his wife awaited to kill themselves so that they might be with the departed emperor, whom the general had served so well in life.

Within the palace park torches and flags lighted the way for the casket being conveyed from the palace and placed on the funeral car. One hundred thousand persons had been favored with permits to enter the park, and they stood silent as the casket, a salute of 101 guns was fired in honor of the dead ruler.

The palanquins included General Kuroki, General Ota, Admiral Togo, Vice Admiral Sato and Viscount Ijima. Immediately the cortege departed, the scene in the upper palace windows was a sad one. Emperor Yoshihito proceeded in a carriage to Aoyama. His majesty was accompanied by Prince Masara, the lord chamberlain, and the emperor's private secretary.

At midnight the detonation of guns was heard in every corner of the empire. A supreme moment of the coronation of the new emperor, when the emperor and the empress knelt before the altar of the departed monarch and prayed while the entire assemblage bowed with heads touching the ground. In the Buddhist temples and Christian churches tolled at this hour and zirconium guns boomed solemnly on sea and land.

KILLED WIFE AND CHILD WHILE ASLEEP.

Insane Iowa Farmer Then Slashed His Own Throat.

Council Bluffs, Ia., Sept. 13.—The bodies of Martin Thompson, a well-to-do farmer, his wife, Caroline, and their six-year-old son Raymond were found shortly after noon today in their home, a few miles southeast of Council Bluffs, with their throats cut and the heads of the woman and boy crushed with a hammer. The circumstances surrounding the crime and a note left by the man indicate that Thompson killed his wife and son while they slept and then committed suicide. So far no motive for the deed has been discovered, and the man is believed to have been in sane.

The crime was committed last night. The bodies were found when lying side by side of the kitchen floor. The knife with which their throats were cut lay near the man. The beds were soaked with blood, indicating that murders were committed while the victims slept, the bodies being afterward taken to the kitchen. All were in their night clothes.

The crime was committed last night, as the family is known to have been alive yesterday afternoon. A letter written by the insane farmer to his two daughters, Christina and Dora, living elsewhere, was translated and made public, but casts no light upon the crime.

"Heartily farewell, children, and a lovely future," Thompson was 45 years old. His wife was 42.

THE REPUBLICAN TICKET RATIFIED AT SAVIN ROCK.

Four Hundred Enthusiastic Republicans Hear Judge Studley.

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 13.—There was an attendance of 400 republicans, including many of the nominees, at the ratification of the republican ticket at Savin Rock under the auspices of the Young Men's Republican club. Harmony prevailed everywhere and political leaders reported to be at sixes and sevens.

Judge John P. Studley, candidate for governor, was the principal speaker. He said that Uncle Sam was in his political menagerie, a donkey, a bull, and a wild goose. Just now the donkey and the wild goose have been fighting, but the elephant, he is now the same old elephant, ready for battle this fall.

Judge Studley said it was customary to defeat the republicans six weeks before election, and this fall was no exception to the rule. He took occasion to attack Woodrow Wilson's tariff policy. Judge Studley's speech was received with great enthusiasm.

Gov. D. A. Blakeslee made a ringing speech in which he said, although he was not a republican, he would pledge his best support to Judge Studley. His speech was well received with a grand applause throughout.

MRS. JOHNSON'S MOTHER TO ATTEND HER FUNERAL.

Says Champion's Wife Showed Signs of Insanity Years Ago.

Chicago, Sept. 13.—Mother's love brought Mrs. David Terry, mother of Mrs. Jack Johnson, from her home in Brooklyn to Chicago today to view the face of her daughter who committed suicide Wednesday night.

Mrs. Terry, who was accompanied by her daughter, Elaine Terry, came to attend the funeral. The funeral was held at the railway station by Jack Johnson, who drove them to his home, where the body of his dead wife lay, surrounded by a few new watchers.

Mrs. Terry declared that her daughter, who formerly was the wife of Clarence Durrey, a wealthy New York horseman, was insane when she shot and killed herself.

"Of course, I would come to my daughter's funeral," Mrs. Terry said. "We opposed her marriage to Jack Johnson because he was a negro. She was injured when she was young and has shown signs of insanity. When I last saw her at my home in Brooklyn she kept saying to me: 'Don't leave me alone, mother. I am afraid I might kill myself.'"

AMERICAN WARSHIPS MAY GO TO SANTO DOMINGO.

Action of Rebels May Make Intervention Necessary.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13.—American warships probably will be sent at once to Santo Domingo as the result of a revolution that has broken out there and the seizure of the customs houses by the rebels. Invasion of the black republic by American forces also may be necessary for advice reaching the state department late today were to the effect that the revolutionists had seized virtually all the customs houses along the Dominican frontier, which are under American supervision.

The action of the rebels in puzzling to state department officials. In past revolutions the leaders have carefully avoided interfering with the customs houses and thus inviting action by the United States. Their methods now, it is feared, indicates that no foreign property is safe.

Plans for the military expedition are being guarded with more than usual secrecy. It is acknowledged today by officials here that the situation is serious. Orders probably will be issued for the sending of several detachments of marines as soon as the necessary vessels are forthcoming.

Victor Allen is Freed by Jury

LAST OF THE ALLEN GANG FOUND NOT GUILTY.

JURY OUT HALF HOUR

Father and Brother Have Been Sentenced to Electric Chair—Two of the Gang Are Still at Liberty.

Wytheville, Va., Sept. 13.—Victor Allen, last of the Allen clanmen to be tried, was acquitted today of the charge of having participated in the Carroll county courthouse murders at Hillville, last March.

Jury Out Half Hour.

It took the jury only half an hour to reach its verdict.

There are three essentials in advertising to bring the best results, the merchandise and store service, the newspaper and the copy. This applies to the small as well as to the large advertiser. The merchants who conduct small stores, specialty shops, in fact, any business depending upon public patronage, can get excellent results from modest advertising expenditures.

They must, however, look upon it as one of the important branches of their business and realize that the responsibility for making their advertising pay rests upon their shoulders. It will not run itself, any more than the business will. It must have attention, and the more attention it gets the greater is the return. Of this necessary energy to make the advertisement pay, fifty per cent. must be furnished by the merchandise and the storekeeping, or the service rendered in caring for the wants of the customers. Forty per cent. will be furnished by the newspaper with its circulation, and the remaining ten must come from the copy. It is the paper which reaches the homes which can do the most good to any advertiser, and in that respect The Bulletin stands out.

For the past week the following matter has appeared in The Bulletin, delivered at your door for twelve cents a week:

The verdict brought a demonstration from the spectators, a large portion of whom were women. At the request of counsel for the state, the members of the Allen clan, who were indicted against him were dismissed.

Allen in Tears.

Allen, who was surrounded by his wife and four children, was much affected when the verdict was given, and as he shook hands with the jurors tears coursed down his cheeks. The acquittal of Victor Allen brought to a close the trial of the Allen clan for the murders at Hillville, where the preading judge, the sheriff, the commonwealth's attorney, a juror, and a witness met death at the hands of the Allen clan.

American Patrol Has Good Effect

MEXICAN REBELS DRAW AWAY FROM BORDER.

RETIRE TO THE SOUTH

Orders Had Been Issued to Send American Troops Across Boundary. Douglas Was Menaced by Their Fire.

Washington, Sept. 13.—There was a distinct air of relief in the war department today when General Schuyler reported from Douglas, Ariz., the withdrawal southward of the Mexican rebel bands which had been threatening Agua Prieta, across the border from Douglas.

Effect of American Patrol.

The retreat is believed to have been largely due to the uncompromising attitude of the American patrol. Orders to prevent fighting at Agua Prieta, if fire were directed toward Douglas, would have been carried out to the letter, according to the general staff, even if that involved the sending of American troops across the international boundary.

Antigua Now Threatened.

While the situation on the border has improved, reports continue to arrive of revolutionary outbreaks in other sections of Mexico. Zapatlana, Ariz., are said to be threatening the town of Antigua, on the coast north of Vera Cruz. Uprisings are now being expected in the states of Coahuila and Nuevo Leon, according to advices to the state department. The rebels plan in that quarter are said to include the capture of Monterey and Saltillo and the destruction of San Pedro, the home town of President Madero.

American Mine Threatened.

The Mexican government is said
